

For lunch my mom and I like to have picnics in the park. One windy day, we were lying on our blanket with comfortably full tummies and I started noticing how the trees' branches were bending and moving in the wind.

My mom and I got up and tried to move just the way the trees were.

The trees taught us how to dance

that day.

